Letter Men

S. H. S. HAD over 300 letter men at the close of school in 1919. To this record has been added for 1920 thirty-two letters awarded for football, basketball, track, and debate—the largest single group of letter men added in any one year. This fact alone speaks for the spirit and success of the school year that has just closed.

Letter men are leaders in school life. They stand apart from the average student for they are the representatives of the school on the athletic field, the gymnasium court, and the debate platform, and their loyalty and skill bring honor to the school. They win the coveted letter by long gruelling hours of practice supplemented to necessary school work for passing grades. In a measure personal renown itself repays these students but the letter bestowed for skill and faithfulness of this sort enrolls them among the "S" men of the school and is a lasting tribute of the appreciation of S. H. S.

Art in This Number.

THE HABIT is indebted to members of the journalism class for the drawings that have made this 1920 commencement issue attractive. The panels for class and organization pictures, formerly designed by outside talent, were drawn and lettered this year by Oscar Seitz assisted by Ronald Terry. The school never feels the need of an art department more than when work on the annual begins. Talent in the journalism class solved the problem of how to make the 1920 annual attractive. Seitz and Terry did it.

THE annual this year, in spite of the advancing cost of paper and other material that entered into its production, was included in the yearly subscription price of THE HABIT. While this arrangement was a bargain for the subscriber, it was not a profitable business proposition for THE HABIT management and met with expenses that will necessitate an increase in the price next year.

Advantages To Be Derived from Enlistment in the U. S. Army.

By Marian Wheeler, '22

The Rookie was drafted; he left a twelve dollar a week job in the musty back office of a New York banker; he left a walking doll of a sweetheart and the influence of several familiar, harmful cronies; and the boss, who had faith in the army training told him his job would be waiting for him when he returned, whether he had a Croix de Guerre or D.S. medal. Here is what happened to the rookie, just as it could happen to any other man who enlisted in the army.

When he was examined, Rookie was ashamed of himself. He felt like going down on his knees and asking forgiveness for his sins.

In the weeks that followed, he amply atoned for any slight paid to his body in aching muscles and stiff joints, and incidentally learned he was improving. His back grew straighter, his muscles more flexible, his skin clearer, his carriage more erect. One of the first oysters of benefit that Rookie fished from the soup kettle of army training was that of physical.

Another idea that rookie conceived was that every body looks alike to the top sergeant; he ate at the same table, marched shoulder to shoulder, with civil engineers and grocer clerk, with Latin students and janitors—and all got the same treatment. No daddie's reputation kept the private from the guardhouse, who went absent without leave. He learned that the army is a great leveler of the social status, as well as being a school of discipline. He learned that a man with common sense can exist on thirty dollars a month, after all, but it takes untold necessary and beneficial thrift to do it. Thus Rookie learned to save. And, above all, Rookie found out that all times and in certain cases he was not the only pebble on the beach. The second oyster that Rookie gradually ladled out of the kettle was character.

To develop his brain and increase the boundaries of his knowledge, Rookie found that the army was a wonder. He saw people; he saw countries; he learned how to signal; to telegraph; to shoot a rifle; to march; to love his country. It was a slippery oyster of benefit in the shape of mental developement that Rookie forked out with the tool of study from the cauldron.

Such were the gains that Rookie reaped from a year's service in the U. S. Army. He is every man who enlists in a like manner. Every man learned what Rookie did; some knew more. Any can learn as much.

Uncle Sam is proud of his army. He is constantly trying to make it better. The man who becomes one of his children is to be admired and usually is; and the advantages obtained from such an enlistment as I have recorded in that of the Rookie are not like advertisements for patent medicines—they are the real thing and when Uncle Sam promises you the right thing you get it.

Won Fourth Place in the National U. S. Army Contest. April, 1920.

Debate

Debate this year was taken up with more organized work and intense study than ever before. Under the supervision of C. L. Joliffe, instructor in the history department, the teams met every Tuesday through all the months from October to the middle of March. Considerable time and work was spent in preparation by each member and the promised credit in English was well earned.

In addition to the triangular debate which Salina has annually held with Junction City and Abilene, a new field was opened when the invitation to enter the State Debate League was accepted. The negative team composed of Margaret Riley, Dorothy Whitney and Harold Manker sent to Manhattan was defeated by a 2 to 1 decision. The affirmative team George Schuler, Elizabeth Bulkley, and Paul Whittemore won the decision at Salina, but the average of the two teams was such that the Manhattan team won the contest on grades.

The triangular debate took place on March 29. The negative team John Whitney, Ralph Hower, and Harold Manker, accompanied by Mr. Dunsworth of the Science department, were defeated by the Junction City team at Junction City. The affirmative team was the same which took the affirmative in the League Debate. This team was mentioned by the Manhattan paper as one of the best in the state.

Altho Salina High School did not win first honors, the school was proud of its debaters.

The Dramatic Club

The Dramatic Club organized in 1918 continued this year under the direction of Miss Gordon. Altho the membership of the club did not increase over last year, the club has become more active and has taken a permanent place in the high school activities. Instead of working up organization programs, it devoted its time to preparing short plays for general assembly presentation. The club appeared first during Good English Week in the morality play "Everystudent." Then followed "Joint Ownership of Sunset Home," a clever farce, as the first in a series of assembly programs presented by high school organizations. A third play "The Flower of Yeddo," the last public program of the club, was presented a few weeks before the close of school.

High School Orchestra

The high school orchestra has made unusual progress this year, conducted as a regular class the fifth period of each school day, and ranks among the best high school organizations of the sort in the state.

The thirty-three members of the S. H. S. Orchestra with the aid of a number of local artists furnished music at two Municipal Pop Concerts in 1920 and accompanied the "St. Paul" in the Spring Music Festival.

Arrangements had been made by Mr. Lebow, director of the orchestra, to enter the State Contest at Emporia but the Spring Festival and the weather interfered. The orchestra gave a high class concert in the high school auditorium on May 14, the money going toward the purchase of new music and other necessary supplies.

The orchestra has given the students and patrons of the school more enjoyment than any other organization of S. H. S. Few weeks of the school year have passed without some musical entertainment by this group. It has appeared in entire programs and has assisted with special numbers at most of the assembly exercises during the year.

Organizations

Y. W. C. A.

The Y. W. with one hundred and thirty members is the largest and most active organization in the high school. During the early spring a drive for a city Y. W. C. A. resulted in a local organization of 1400 members, giving a fresh incentive to the high school group. Two membership campaigns were held as usual, one in September and one after the Christmas holidays. As school was uninterrupted by enforced vacations, the association was able to hold regular meetings this year. During the first semester meetings were held at noon, but owing to the large group the noon sessions added to the already crowded cafeteria, the time of meeting was changed for the second semester to alternate Wednesday evenings. The Wesleyan Y. W. joined the high school organization in social gatherings several times during the school year.

The Events of the Year

Get Acquainted Weenie Roast, October 3.

Christmas Party for Thirty Little Folks, December 19.
Chapel Program "Gentle Alice Brown" March 19.

Benefit Picture Show, April 21.
Mother's Meeting, May 5.

Senior Girls Club

The Senior Girls Club was reorganized early in the year with Sylvia Ferguson, president, Velma Knapp, vice president, Neva Brown, treasurer and Dora Geiger, secretary. The club is a permanent organization of the school, but is reorganized with new members each year. All senior girls are eligible to membership. The president has appointed groups of four to act as hostesses to the club at regular meetings every other Tuesday at the close of the fifth hour. At this time a purely social time is enjoyed with games, amusements and refreshments. The club has done much to bring the girl acquaintances of the senior class into a more friendly companionship.

Bible Class

The club which was organized in bible study has the distinction of being the first ever organized in the school. The first part of the term W. C. Auston, a senior at K. W. U. acted as instructor. Later the Reverend Mr. Dillinger of the Christian Church was secured to teach the last semester. "A Study of the Life of Christ" was the text book used. Officers of the club are: President, John Whitney; Vice-president, Louise Jodon; treasurer Robert Farrier; secretary, Ruth Woodworth.

Athletic Officers

PAUL BRASSFIELD

Business Manager

HAROLD CLARK

Treasurer

LELAND KEEFER, (Captain) left tackle,
177 lbs.

Along with weight, "Keef", has science and action. Determination, grit and hard work made him an able captain. No one could open a hole for "Cal", if "Keef" couldn't.

HERBERT BELL, left guard, 142 lbs.

Although this was Bell's first year at the game, he will be a hard man to replace next year. He played a strong defensive game. "Herb", was always "rarin" to go.

CLAUDE LIPE, left guard, 165 lbs.

Although the game was new to Lipe, he played a good line position. He was slow, but has a great chance for development. His weight will be a valuable asset to the team when he learns how to use it.

HAROLD PIERCE, right guard, 159 lbs.

Pierce was a veteran player from the A. E. F. When you see him "paw", bet on S. H. S. It means something. His fight was the foundation of his success.

HARRY VIDRICKSON, right guard,
152 lbs.

"Vid" had the requisite fight of a real football player, although he was handicapped by inexperience. When Harry learns to hit low, opponents will have a power to be reckoned with.

JOE ANDERSON, sub center, 125 lbs.

"The bigger they are, the harder they fall," was Joe's motto. This was his first year at the game and in it he gained the respect of every man on the team. He is S. H. S.'s most promising football star.

SCOTT MARKLEY, center, 137 lbs.

Scott possessed more pep and fight than any other man on the team. He was sure of his signals and no enemy plays came over center.

ALBERT GILLMAN, right tackle, 175 lbs.

"Windy" blew the right way this year. He was keen on smashing interference and opening holes for backfield runs. "Ras" tackled hard and usually gave a good account of himself.

HAROLD GILLMAN, left end, 147 lbs.

"Gilly" was there with the goods when he was most needed. His grit and natural ability made end runs an impossibility for opponents. He has another year in which to distinguish himself.

JACK STAPLES, quarter back, 136 lbs.

Jack was a letter man from last year. He was fast on the field and brainy as a quarter back. Jack was quick at finding the weak points of opposing teams and lost no time in taking advantage of them.

GAIL PIERCE, quarter back, 136 lbs.

A scrimmage with the Wesleyan injured Pierce for the season and hence handicapped the football machine. Gail ruled the squad efficiently when it was possible for him to enter the game.

RUSSELL PIERCE, half back, 147 lbs.

"Rocky" was noted for his line plunges 23-30-2-6-89- a flash and Rocky's head was seen protruding from the fallen debris.

PAUL BRASSFIELD, left half, 163 lbs.

"Brassie" the peppy half back, was a cool thinker, a whirlwind on the offensive and a sure gainer. His spectacular end runs made him a favorite with football fans.

JOHN McLEAN, right end, 155 lbs.

"Johnny" was a marvel at end, a demon for pep and fight. He distinguished himself especially in his clever forward pass work which saved the day in the Manhattan game.

LAVERNE CALVERT, full back, 156 lbs.

"Cal" was the steadiest man on the team, the man that always could be depended upon in a pinch. He was fast on his feet, a terrific smasher, and a sure tackler. When he hit—oblivion.

Basket Ball

(Guard) JOHN McLEAN (Captain.)

"Johnny."

"Johnny" played a fast, aggressive style of ball which always drew the admiration of the spectators. He played as guard on the "All-Central Kansas Basket Ball Squad."

HAROLD HERZIG (Center)

"Swine."

Herzig was the hard luck man of the squad. A severe case of the "Flu" handicapped him for the season and made him erratic in play. "Swine" will be an invaluable man on the next year's team.

GLENN NIQUETTE (Guard)

"Ni."

Niquette starred as an all around defense man. Although he was not a spectacular player on the offensive, few goals were caged by opponents, for "Ni" can't be downed."

LAWRENCE HOWER (Guard)

"Spear."

Hower suit school in the middle of the season to take up a claim in Wyoming. His loss was a severe blow to the team as he was one of its strongest men.

Basket Ball

HAROLD GILLMAN (Forward)
"Gilly."

Gillman made a place on the second team of the "All Central Squad". His floor work and clean goal shooting pulled S. H. S. thru many a pinch. "Gilly" always was there with bells on.

DANIEL BOLEN (Sub-forward)
"Dan."

"Dan", altho a hard worker, played in but one game of the season. He showed remarkable ability as a goal shooter in the St. John's game.

PAUL BRASSFIELD (Guard)
"Brassie."

"Brassie" was a reliable man on the defensive. His aggressiveness, fight and pep marked him a hard man to pass.

GAIL PIERCE (Forward.)
"P."

Studies made Pierce ineligible before the end of the season and cut him out of his letter. He was a skillful passer and a sure free thrower.

Track.

Four track meets were included in the schedule for 1920, a triangular meet with McPherson and St. Johns Military Academy; a triangular meet with Minneapolis and Abilene; the Fifth District Meet at Abilene on May 1; and the State Meet at Manhattan, May 8.

Salina men boast of a successful season after winning the championship cup of the Fifth District along with the relay cup of that meet, a victory over Abilene and Minneapolis in the triangular and two second place medals in the State Meet.

Seven men, Harold Anderson

Ronald Terry, John McLean, Walter Woodworth (Capt.) Harold Gillman, Leland Keefer, and Scott Markley met requirements and were officially awarded track letters.

The relay team composed of McLean, Gillman, Anderson and Terry brought home the relay cup, coming within two seconds of the state record.

Woodworth tied for high point man in the Fifth District and won two second place medals in the State Meet at Manhattan.

Thurston, Anderson and Gillman should make good men in 1921.

Humor

Remarkable Statistics Concerning the 1920 Annual

If all the cartoons drawn by Foster and rejected by the censor board were gathered together and published in book form, a book of 1,097,008 pages would not accommodate more than 2 percent of them unless placed three on a page.

If all the paper wasted by Shier, Floyd, Markley, Dahlinger and Price while getting inspirations were placed end to end, it would encircle the largest star in the milky way, and incidentally relieve the paper shortage.

And if all the time wasted by the Staff in writing-copy and attempting originality could be regained and divided equally among the class of '20 to be tacked on the end of their lives, they would live to a ripe old age.

A Junior Class Prophecy

The prologue to a prophecy should always be quite short,
For people often like some time to form a sharp retort,
I am not wishing to create an avalanche of wrath;
Nor would I be a fugitive before the aftermath.
So if within this verse you see a line that bodes you ill,
Remember that the one who writes it bears you no ill will;
But this is written only for a reason you may know;
I think it may amuse you and I hope I will do so.

Ten years have passed since '20 and the Juniors that I knew
Have changed beyond conception and I'm sure you'll think so too;
Henry has achieved success on New York's Broad White Way;
A great producer furnishing the highest type of play.
The city's fairly gasping at his leading lady star,
For Margaret's accomplishments are known both near and far.

They're surrounded by a company in whom you'll recognize
Some of your old companions who have caught the public's eyes,
Hal Sherman is the leading man, and Morris plays the heavies,
While Franklin as the juvenile attracts the girls in bebies;
Lela as the vampire, and Dot Soldan the soubrette,
With Tom as the comedian have not been equalled yet.
Within the constellation where movie stars abound
Two names that I shall mention may easily be found;
Bill Grosser is a hero in the realm of cupid's darts;
He's just released a picture; 'tis "A Trail of Broken Hearts."
While Ralph, the cowboy actor, is at his very best
In "The Bold Bad Man from Barneo," a tale of the wild, wild west.
At home he has a sweet young bride who hoped but all in vain
That someday to a musical career she might attain,
Instead she is a housewife, a dandy one I own,
Due to her husband's motto, "Women's place is in the home."
In far off California Edith Naylor and Jeannette
Have prospered well through founding the most famous parlor yet,
They specialize in giving to almost any girl
That artifice of beauty, the soft elusive curl.
Curtis Abel is quite noted for creating much alarm
In a seminary for debutantes as professor of charm,
Charm is a new addition to the subjects taught of old,
But Curtis makes it interesting, or so I have been told.
Reverend Stiefel preaches and proclaims the Golden Rule,
While Richard is conducting an exclusive dancing school.
Two authors may be mentioned among our former class,

Whose works contain such merit as no
 one can surpass;
 Lyle Hollingsworth has written "My Love Affairs in Youth," Corrinne "The Right of Nations, as Based on Legal Truth."
 Collaboration has produced another
 work of art,
 A song by Berger, Stonebraker has won
 the public's heart;
 And all the world with one accord pronounces it a "dream."
 It's title of "Oh, Richard, Love," suggests the pleasing theme;
 Ray Stolpher's large establishment is of the very best,
 He started out his great career with energy and zest,
 His new creations are the rage; and we can't but admire
 The way he sets the fashion in all feminine attire.
 Marie deserves some mention; I recently have read
 She's in the Suffrage movement, and almost at its head.
 'Tis said that Harold Anderson takes charge of home affairs;
 His wife is much too busy to be bored by household cares.
 Doctor Mildred Connelly excels in her vocation;
 While Josephine, now on the stage, derives her chief elation
 Depicting roles from Shakespeare of ambition, love, and death;
 The greatest, her portrayal of that bard's
 Lady Macbeth.
 I might make observation in an unending line
 Concerning friends at S. H. S. of yours and of mine;
 But I should hate to weary you; I think it would be best
 To wait until another time to tell you of the rest.

DORIS THOMAS.

Said teacher, "How did Ruskin play
 A part in the work of his day?"
 "Oh, I know," said a youth
 Who adheres to the truth.
 "He got married, and helped in that way."

Behold! I am a Sophomore! What heights have I attained! I'm full of wise and booky lore; the freshman I disdain.
 They are beneath my haughty stare;
 they're only children yet, while on the trains I pay full fare. My toys I'll soon forget. I'm getting very wild and tough;
 I wear a gorgeous collar. No one dares to call my bluff (they know that I would holler). I see a movie every week; I'm out till half past eight. I have a fuzz upon my check; last month I had a date.
 By all this it is plainly seen I'm somewhat of a sport. My hair lies sleek upon my bean, and some beauty is my forte. I've realized it's silly to study long and hard. Suppose my brain is jelly? I have a lion heart.

I am a Junior old and wise, I've studied many books. Horn rimmed specs adorn my eyes, I sure possess the looks. I'm getting very dignified, I have a state-ly tread. My studies I can well let slide; I've enough within my head. Although I'm growing rather old, I lightly bear my age. The colors of my shirt are bold; my ties are all the rage. I have a lovely pompadour, a beautiful complexion; my resolutions are no more, they've suffered a deflection. I see a movie every night;

I roam the great white way. I guzzle "cokes" with main and might; I startle Santa Fe. In short I'm quite a rapid guy, a man about the town. My folks they look at me and sigh, and say that I'm a clown. But in my estimation I'm quite a brilliant man. My socks cause consternation; my shoes are hectic tan. I wear a natty little lid, that suits my style of beauty; I'm no more a little kid, I have a grown man's duty.

A Senior Soliloquy

I sit me down to cogitate on future occupations; I want to be both gay and great, and famed thruout the nation.

I'd like to be a steeple-jack and skylark on a steeple; I'd see'f the bells were out of whack; I'd awe the earth-bound people. But if I fell, I'd crack my dome or break my swan-like neck. I think I'll linger near the loam, my mug I'd hate to wreck. A doctor's life is free and rich, he helps all sickly mortals, but if he makes a little hitch they view the pearly portals. A lawyer rakes in beaucoup jack; he profits on each case. The coin rolls in by bale and stack, he elocutes with grace. A teacher's life is glad and free, he makes the children learn. The coin he gets would not suit me. You don't get half you earn. A preacher's life is most benign. He does a world of good. A soldier has a lovely time; he gets free clothes and food. But all the same their pay is punk; they never can live high. This altruism stuff is bunk, when the wolf howls ever high. An author has a lovely time (if he can sell his books) and for his books he'll get one dime (If th' editor likes his looks).

I'll never be a poet, nor yet a journalist. I may yet in time out-grow it, but I'll be a Bolshevik.

She's a senior; her manner is charming,
Her effect on the boys is alarming,
They worry and fret,
And their lessons can't get,
But, really, her smile is disarming.
I suppose you have heard of the teacher,
Who of late has become quite a preacher:

He believes the career
That a girl should hold dear,
Is that of a tidy housekeeper.

The Overall Club should decrease
The prices; and bring us some peace.
But don't you suppose
While wearing those clothes
The cost of them, too, will increase?

"This is leap year," the girls coyly say,
"So we girls should go out of our way."
But to tell the sad truth,
(I'll admit its uncouth),
Isn't every year leap year today?

The Seniors, so pompous and wise;
The Freshmen, with wondering eyes;
The Sophomores, crowing;
The Juniors, all-knowing;
These four do a High School comprise.
He's a senior, distinguished and tall,

She's a girl who is known by her smile,
And her giggle's become quite the style.
Still, although it's refreshing,
In class, it's distressing
To the teachers who've knowledge awhile.

Miss Kremin: "What is a synonym?"

David P. "A substitute for the word you spell."

Mr. Marr: "What is the unit of electrical power?"

Hi Clark (waking up) "What?"

Mr. Marr: "Correct."

Leone (when a picture of some
"Oh! aren't they dear!")

Oscar: "No they are sheep."

Mr. Marr explaining negative electricity.

Thelma Diemer. "Oh, is it affirmative electricity that hurts?"

Mr. Marr: "I never knew a woman who could keep a secret."

Miss Kuhn: "Oh, I haven't told my age since I was sixteen."

Mr. Marr: "Yes, but some day you will tell it."

Miss Kuhn: "Well, I think if I've kept it two years, I can keep it forever."

Glen Garrison: "Say, Dad, what is the solution of the H. C. L.?"

Dad: "Blest, if I know."

Glen: "Now there you go. Tomorrow I'll flunk in history for your ignorance."

The Senior soars,
The Junior roars,
The "Sophy" snores,
The Freshman bores.

IN LAB.

Senior Girl: "Why does my flame smoke?"

Senior Boy: "Because it can't chew."

Carl Foster shows great interest in the papers from the Osawatomie exchange.

She's junior, quite slender and small,
They talk of a dance
And are soon in a trance;
Then Mac chases them out of the hall.

Where there is a will there's a relation.

Margaret C: "Henry, I've something to ask you."

Henry L: "Go ahead, this is leap year."

I had no nickel on the car
Naught but a 'tater—sakes alive—
The con accepted it and gave Me back a dollar forty-five.—Ex.

Harold Stonebraker (in history class): "The nihilists are fantastics."

Mr. Dunsworth (displaying a bottle): "This is grape sugar."

Henry L: "Is it good to eat?"

Mr. Dunsworth (showing the half empty bottle): "Mr. Marr seems to think so."

Miss Gemmill: "Who has Tennyson with the red back?"

We hear that Miss Swick, gives no report because she does not use powder.

Heard in the halls: All my decendants were Americans.

Mr. Dunsworth (out for ducks): "Had any luck yet?"

Mr. Marr: "I should say so! Just missed a flock of chickens."

Flo: "You love another!"

Bo: "You're another."

EXEUNT SENIORS; CURTAIN.

When through these portals I depart
Into the world, (lie still my heart!)
Upon the steps I'll sit and sigh
And wipe a tear-drop from my eye.

No more the halls I'll promenade,
Nor stand and gossip with some maid.
No more by freshies be admired,
Nor of the sophomores grow tired.

The juniors, too, I'll leave behind,
And all the faculty so kind;
The overtures by orchestra,
The hum of press, the buzz of saw.

The clanging of the class bell dear,
Never again shall I hear;
So when I've made my last exit,
Upon the steps I'll sigh and sit.

—O. J. F. S. '20.

She: "I don't admire her taste, do you?"

He (very fond of "her" mentioned above): "I don't know whether I do or not, I never sampled it."

Profiteer (to freshman applicant for job): "Let me hear you give the table of weights and measures."

Freshie: "Fourteen ounces make one pound ———."

Profiteer: "Great, you're hired."

Carl Brust (called upon suddenly to translate): "So it is you who have drawn me from my nap?"

Teacher: "Can you tell me of anything of importance that didn't exist a hundred years ago?"

Snapp: "Me".

"Did you call him up this morning?"

"Yes, but he wasn't down."

"But why didn't you call him down?"

"Because he wasn't up."

"Then call him up now and call him down for not being down when you called him up."—Ex.

A Safe Place To Buy

What are the considerations that influence you in purchasing merchandise? Quality, price and style are factors. Suitability is another consideration. But the two most important things are Quality and Style—Goods that may be depended upon for service and satisfaction.

The styles, quality and reliability of this store are unquestioned. The merchandise we sell is good. As this school year lies down to rest we have in store clothes galore for both those whose thoughts are homeward bound, and for those whose minds are gravitated on happy vacation days.
